This magazine is a project by Strange Spotter

The majority of the photos in this magazine has been taken by me, @strangespotter during the last 3 years of spotting.

About the cover:

The image on the cover has been created totally unintentionally. While I was impaginating the magazine, the program had a bug and all the photos on the 6 pages I was working on suddenly became composed of thousands of little squares. They were details of the photos of the panels, like a detail of a piece, the tracks, a piece of the door, a window, and all the colors became basically a mix of Rgb colors.
They were so interesting to me that I screenshotted all and I wanted to use them to make something, so I ended up doing the cover.
I did nothing to those images but to put them to fit the page.

Note:
Each special was created following the artist's will

On the top

Nel nord Italia, specialmente sui treni Trenord, non è raro intravedere una macchia di colore sui tetti dei vagoni.
Quelle "macchie" non sono però dei resti di dei wholecar buffati male, e nemmeno delle tag di qualche writer.
Penso di non dire il falso quando dico che è uno dei pochissimi, o forse l'unico a fare questo genere di cose.
Oltre alla sua lunga attività da writer, ROK da molti anni dipinge il suo nome anche sui tetti dei vagoni.
Che sia per evitare il buff e far girare il nome per un tempo quasi infinito, o che sia per essere immediatamente riconosciuto nelle immagini satellitari non lo so, ma sicuramente è una cosa che va notata.
Quindi, la prossima volta che vedete un tetto colorato sappiate che si tratta sempre di lui!

In the north of Italy, especially on Trenord trains, it's not rare to see sometimes a splash of color on the roof of the wagons.
Those "stains" are not the remains of some badly buffed wholecars, or some writer's tag.
I think I'm not wrong when I say that he's the one of the very few, or maybe the only one, to do those kind of stuff.
Besides his very long and active career as a graffiti writer, ROK paints also on the roof of the train convoys since many years now.
Call him a brave man or a genius for escaping the buff system by so having the name running for years, and also be recognized on satellite images, but it's a thing totally worth to be seen.
So, the next time that you see a colored roof, keep in mind that he's always him!

I pannelli cambiano, il tetto no!

The panels changes, the roof not!
